DESTITUTION HAS MULTIPLE IMPACTS

The result of destitution can include homelessness, poor physical and mental health, as well as social isolation.

At a crucial time when a person faces the uncertainty of a safe future, the compounding impact of destitution can be devastating.

The Department of Immigration knew this when they developed the forerunner of the SRSS program (the Community Care Pilot) in 2009.

NOT DESTITUTION

If you had no income or family in Australia, how would you live?
Who would you turn to?

Up to 12,000 people seeking asylum in Australia are at risk of losing core services and financial support.

We believe that no person lawfully residing in Australia should be forced into destitution through the removal of access to financial and housing supports.

You can take action NOW!

#dignitynotdestitution

Around 12,000 people seeking asylum in Australia may be at risk of losing core services and financial support due to Government changes in the Status Resolution Support Services (SRSS).

A number of people seeking asylum are already surviving on emergency handouts from a range of charities, and living with friends or community members, often in vulnerable or unstable conditions. With these changes, the level of destitution is going to increase to unprecedented levels.

Thankfully most people seeking asylum have the right to work. But we know finding employment can take time. Whilst people are seeking employment, we believe they should not be forced into destitution.

Make a difference by taking action today!

Dear Prime Minister,

I am deeply concerned that people seeking asylum are being removed from crucial financial supports through the SRSS that could result in the loss of stable accommodation and access to basic subsistence needs.

I agree that finding employment is an empowering way to live in the Australian community and to participate in Australian life. However, I urge you to continue essential financial support through the SRSS until a person is able to secure employment.

I further believe that;
